2006 Social Security and Medicare Trust Fund Reports

The Social Security and Medicare Board of Trustees met here this afternoon totheir financial review of the programs and to transmit the Trustees' Reports to Congress. I welcome my Cabinet colleagues and the Public Trustees, Tom Saving and John Palmer, twoand experts in their field, appointed by the previous Administration and now recently reappointed.
The nation is indeed fortunate to have your continuedtwo programs form the basis of a looming fiscal crisis as the baby boom generation moves into retirement. If we do not take action soon to both Social Security and the coming demographic bulge will drive Federal spending tolevels, consume nearly all projected federal revenues, andthe Nation's future Current trends are clearly not sustainable. The President has shown his
