The Best Teacher in the World

One day long, long ago, a teacher named Mr. Daniels came to room 13. Mr. Daniels was positive adjective, and positive adjective. Very, very Same adjective as the last word. He taught the children reading, writing and Noun. He also taught them poetry, song writing, and Noun. The children loved him and he Verb - Past Tense them. The class had Number wonderful months with Mr. Daniels. Some days were fantastic, and some days were Adjective, but everyone learned a lot together. Then, in June, it was time for Mr. Daniels to go. He was riding off into the sunset to another class where children needed him. The Noun - Plural of room 13 were sad to see him go, but they knew he was off to conquer another adventure, and they wished him the best of Noun.

Sincerely,

Your Name
