Easter Eggs

The precise origin of the custom of colouring eggs is not known. Greeks to this day typically dye their Easter eggs red, in recognition of the _____ of _____ in springtime. Some also use the color green, in honor of the _____ emerging after the long winter. Other colors, including the pastels popular in the United States and elsewhere, symbolizing the rainbow, another seasonal sign of luck and _____ seem to have come along later. The act of _____ coloured eggs at the Spring Equinox can be considered a form of prayer for increased fertility, and for a _____ later in the year.
