The Palouse Falls Adventure

One _____Adjective_____ day in November, Matt and Christi decided to visit the _____Adjective_____ Palouse Falls. After packing a lunch, they drove off in/on Matt's _____Noun_____, narrowly missing ridiculously _____Adjective_____ tumbleweeds that blew into the road. Finally, they arrived at the park, and ate their lunch, which consisted of _____Noun_____, _____Noun_____, and _____Noun_____. Once they had finished their tasty meal, they set off on the trail toward the falls.

As they walked, Matt took Christi's _____ in his hand and led her down the trail. Her heart began beating _____. "Aww, he's so _____!" she thought, smiling. After a few moments, they came upon a small stream with a waterfall. "Stand right there, and I'll take a picture of you," Matt told her. "Look at you! You look so _____!" (Matt always had a way with words).

They hiked through the _____ rocks, and eventually came to the top of the falls. There was a steep trail that led to the water's edge, so Matt decided to take off the _____ _____ he had been carrying in order to climb down the trail more easily. The two climbed down, saw the _____ view, and climbed back up--only to find the _____ _____ GONE! Putting two and two together, they realized that the _____ wind gusts and blown it straight off the waterfall! "Oh my _____!" cried Matt, horrified. " The keys to my _____ were in there!"

Faced with the _____ possibility of being stranded in the park, the two scrambled down the side of the cliff to the bottom of the waterfall. Maybe, just maybe, the _____ _____ had survived the fall and washed up on shore. They scoured the shore, valiant adventurers as they were, but alas, there was no sign of the missing _____.

Then suddenly, like a _____, a flash of color appeared in the water. "That's it!" Matt yelled, _____. "Looks like I'm going swimming." Christi watched as he peeled off his _____ and _____ so that they wouldn't get wet. "Wow, look at that/those _____!" she thought to herself, blushing. "They're/It's just so _____!" With the finesse of a _____, Matt waded into the frigid water to retrieve his _____. He swam several _____ and finally reached the _____. " By _____'s _____!" exclaimed Christi, "He's done it!" Numb from the cold, Matt emerged from the water like a(n) _____, his _____ glistening in the sunlight. In Christi's mind, it was like watching a scene from _____, but with more _____.

When they opened the _____, they discovered that the keys to Matt's _____ were still inside, along with several _____, all of which were completely soaked. Nevertheless, they now knew that they wouldn't be stranded, and, feeling quite _____, proceeded to make their way back to the parking lot. They _____ up the rocks, climbed into/onto Matt's _____, and headed for home. It certainly had been a day that they would always remember...and it wasn't over yet
