It is now week 10 of the quarter and all the students are feeling since it's dead week. These students are all enrolled in a class focused on teamwork and they think the class is Their instructor Michael is a lecturer and makes class verb - Present Tense They learned about their personalities by taking the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator test and some of them were categorized as an "ESFJ" which stands for Verb - Present Tense: Starts with an S , Verb - Present Tense: Starts with an F , and Verb - Present Tense: Starts with a J .
Next, they learned about emotional intelligence and learned about the John Maeda. A quote that stood out was "To me, it is an eloquent expression of not only an unattainable goal in life, but also the nature of human ambition of constantly wanting to become better" because most people in the world are constantly striving to become every day and to represent themselves as the they are.
The students also learned about the Tuckman's model and how the 5 stages are F , Verb - Present Tense: Starts with an S , Verb - Present Tense: Starts with a N , Verb- Present Tense: Starts with a P, and Verb- Present Tense: Starts with an M, just kidding they actually are forming, storming, norming, performing, and mourning. This model is geared towards groups and if used effectively with hard work and focus, the group will quickly become a Adjective team.

An activity that	the students participate	ed in was creating a/an	Adjective	_ tower out of spaghet	ti sticks and marshmallows, a	and "toilet cleaners" a	different time. Most of the	e students were	e Verb - Past Participle	because their tower didn'	t stay standing when th	ne judge came around. Th	ne activity was	Adjective and	the cheesy prize at the end	was worth it to the win	ners.
Halfway through	the quarter the studer	its prototyped the design	of a timer as a	kickstarter project. Tl	ne timers were all very	Adjective and we	re fully funded by billion	aires, just kidd	ling even though all th	ne students really wished the	eir ideas were fully sup	pported.
One of the stude	nts wished to have a cl	ass-wide krump battle an	nd is still hopin	g to have it before the	quarter is over.
Overall, the clas	s taught the students he	ow to beAdjective	_ team membe	ers, how to resolve
