One summer night while _____Verb - Present Tense_____ with Garrett and a myriad of _____Adjective_____ noun_____, and after consuming a decent amount of ___noun____, I decided to go for a walk _____Preposition or subordinating conjunction_____ Skmana Lake. I told _____Proper Noun_____ and our friend Peter I would be gone for about __number____ minutes to ___verb ___around. During my _____Noun_____, I hit a patch of ___adjective___ground and realized it would be a pain to go back so I continued forward and chose to ___verb___ around the small lake as I had a few ____adjective___beers to carry me on. As I reached the _____Verb - Present Tense_____ end of the lake to our campsite I saw the group standing and ___verb___ amongst themselves, apparently panicked and looking for me. Garrett noticed me and to get my attention he thought of something rather ___adjective____. Being of ___adjective___ skill, and still able to aim well, the ___adjective___man grabbed his golf clubs out of his car and proceeded to hit ___Noun___ in my direction until I noticed. This was incredibly startling as I ___adverb___ thought I was under fire by dive-bombing ___Noun___, and thus ended my camping walk as I returned back to be ____adverb___ talked to by the group.
