The Fox and the Cat (Der Fuchs und die Katze)

It happened that the _____Noun_____ met the _____Noun_____ in a _____Noun_____, and as she thought to herself, "He is _____Adjective_____ and full of experience, and much esteemed in the _____Noun_____," she spoke to him in a _____Adjective_____ way. "Good-day, dear Mr. _____Noun_____, how are you? How is all with you? How are you getting through this dear _____Noun_____?" The _____Noun_____, full of all kinds of arrogance, looked at the _____Noun_____ from head to _____Noun_____, and for a long time did not know whether he would give any _____Noun_____ or not. At last he said, "Oh, thou wretched beard-cleaner, thou piebald _____Noun_____, thou hungry mouse-hunter, what canst thou be thinking of? Dost thou venture to ask how I am getting on? What hast thou learnt? How many arts dost thou understand?" "I understand but one," replied the _____Noun_____, modestly. "What art is that?" asked the _____Noun_____. "When the _____Noun_____ are following me, I can spring into a _____Noun_____ and save myself." "Is that all?" said the _____Noun_____. "I am master of a hundred arts, and have into the bargain a sackful of _____Noun_____. Thou makest me sorry for thee; come with me, I will teach thee how people get away from the _____Noun_____." Just then came a _____Noun_____ with four _____Noun_____. The _____Noun_____ sprang nimbly up a tree, and sat down on top of it, where the branches and _____Noun_____ quite concealed her. "Open your sack, Mr. _____Noun_____, open your sack," cried the _____Noun_____ to him, but the _____Noun_____ had already seized him, and were holding him fast. "Ah, Mr. _____Noun_____," cried the _____Noun_____. "You with your hundred arts are left in the lurch! Had you been able to climb like me, you would not have lost your _____Noun_____."
