Attack of the zombie slugs

Here we are, _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ down _____occupation_____ highway, _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ for our lives. The zombie slugs are after us.

It all started this morning when we had _____food_____ at the zoo. "Do you want more?" Asked the waitress. We thought she looked _____Adjective_____, but she worked at the zoo. Of course you would make yourself look a little bit like an animal if you worked at the zoo. Right? I mean, she had an odd resemblance to a slug, but we thought it would be _____Adjective_____ to say anything. My friend, Zach, said, "_____saying_____!" And so she sort of _____Verb Past Tense_____ away without saying anything, as if she'd just bring us some more in a minute. She did bring us some and we _____Verb Past Tense_____ it up while she watched us and a little bit of drool dribbled down her _____Part of Body_____.

Zach said, "Excuse me, Ma'am, but you're drooling. Would you like to _____Verb Base Form_____ my napkin? Do you want some of our _____food_____?"

The slug lady waitress said, "_____saying_____. No!" But her eyes never left us and it seemed to us that as she watched us eat her eyes began _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ out of her head more and more. I looked away feeling _____Adjective_____.

we knew what was going on we were all _____Adjective_____. We never even got to see the _____Animal (plural)_____, or the _____Animal (plural)_____. We never got to _____Verb Base Form_____ or ride on the _____Noun_____. Those slug zombies had _____Verb Past Tense_____ us. We woke up with _____Adjective_____ headaches on the island in the middle of the _____Adjective_____ pool. Zach was first and he shook me awake. "Come on, _____First Name of a Person_____, we've got to get out of here," he whispered. I woke up and put my hands to my _____Part of Body_____. "_____saying_____!" I said.

"Tell me about it!" Zach agreed. "But tell me later. Let's _____Verb Base Form_____ fast."

At that point we still didn't know they were slug zombies, but we had an inkling the waitress had something to do with it. The zoo had an eerie _____Adjective_____ silence about it. As we hustled out we ran into them. A group of _____Adjective_____, drooling people all dressed as zoo workers who also looked like slugs somehow. We stopped, _____Adjective_____, but as they came _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ at us we shot out of there.

So, now you see why we are _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ down the highway with our _____Part of Body_____ in the air, _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ for our _____relative_____. Somebody help.
