Baby Showers

While there are no set guidelines for what constitutes a baby shower, there are some traditional activities that are common at baby showers. Traditionally, the shower is given for the _____Adjective_____parent by someone else as opposed to the parent hosting it. Because the party centers on _____Verb ending in ing_____ the baby shower is generally arranged by a _____Adjective_____Animal_____. Having a baby shower arranged by a _____Animal_____ or _____Animal_____is seen as bad form and self serving by many traditionalists. There is no set rule for when or where showers are to be held and the party can thus be held at a home or at _____Store name_____. It is common for the host to provide baby-themed games during the shower. In some regions, it is common to give party favors, or _____Plural noun_____to the guests. Baby showers are becoming open to new ideas and changes in etiquette. For instance, once it was unacceptable in America for guests to rub the expectant mothers _____Part of body_____. Beginning in the 1970s, however, if permitted by the mother and if asked politely, _____part of body_____rubbing is now a shower event.

Some classic activities at baby showers include:

Guess the birth date or _____Verb_____the _____Noun_____.

- Guess the expectant mother's girth. Guests cut pieces of ribbon, yarn, or _____Plural noun_____to a length they believe matches the mother-to-bes tummy circumference.

- Guess the _____animal_____food flavor. Guests have to taste-test several flavors of _____animal_____food and try to identify them.

- Other games include a diaper throw game, and the diapers contain candies or _____Plural noun_____.

- Baby Shower Mad Libs!

- Opening the gifts in front of the guests.

- Serving _____Food (plural)_____ though any type of food might be served.
