Driving while Texting

Car wrecks have already been _____Past tense verb_____by the _____Adjective_____increase in cell phone use that occurred in the 1990s. People who use cell phones while driving are more _____Adjective_____than people who talk to a front side _____Noun_____. Another problem with cell phones is a fairly new addiction: texting, no matter where one is. In the 2000s, plenty of people are texting while they are driving. This recent media trend has created as many or more traffic _____Plural noun_____than _____Adjective_____cell phones. Unlike _____Adjective_____ held cell phones, text users in general must take their _____Plural noun_____off the road for seconds at a time or maybe just a _____Noun_____. That split second decision is putting more and more people in danger of _____Noun_____collisions every day.

Henceforth, I propose that the state of Oklahoma outlaw _____Adjective_____cell phones and text _____Verb_____ _____ending in ing_____while driving. It is a _____Adjective_____risk for the one driving and others sharing the _____Plural noun_____. The state of Oklahoma should have the right to instate this _____Noun_____on the grounds that the _____Noun_____of others is compromised for the short-term gain of a single _____Noun_____of society.

Proposed by _____First name_____Last name_____ member of the Union _____Verb ending in ing_____Academy
