The Stock Market

The stock market is a concept for the mechanism that enables the trading of company stocks, other securities, and _____.

Participants in the stock market range from small individual stock _____ to large _____ _____ traders, who can be based anywhere. Their orders usually end up with a professional at a stock exchange, who executes the _____.

Some exchanges are physical locations where transactions are _____ on a trading floor, by a method known as open outcry. This type of auction is used in stock exchanges and _____ _____ where traders may enter verbal bids and offers simultaneously. The other type of exchange is a virtual kind, composed of a network of _____ where trades are made electronically via
