the skary zombie attack

once upon a time a little Noun named nickoli came to Italy and she saw no one there and from then she knew something was wrong and she took out her gun and said is anyone out there. no answer so she started to shoot wildly and suddenly she heard groaning and then a shadow of a person so she ran to the stranger and found it wasn't a person it was a zombie. soon she was almost surrounded by big bad brain eating zombies so she had 30 Noun left so she shot them desperately and accurately and soon almost half of them were gone and at that point she had to stay in one spot and find natural resources to help small hopeless nickoli find her way home so she reached out to the car next to her and ripped off the tire and throw it with all her might and hit not 1 2 or 3 but 4 and there was 30 to go and soon they got closer and closer in till she had to run and soon they caught up with her trying to scratch all the skin left on her leg that did not have Noun all over it so she could only hide in the top of the building where she found a hopeless group and she warned them that there was more coming for us so they found a zipline and followed it to the bottom and ran till the ocean and stopped and built a raft that would help them to survive to the land of the living and not like her home in Italy.
