The Calico Cat

The _____ stalked the mouse, his _____ clicking on the rock. The _____ was a skinny calico, and hunted his meals. As he pounced on the mouse, a _____ shadow loomed over him. The calico halted, his _____ drooping. He pushed the mouse in the direction of the shadow. A _____ and _____ paw reached out and hooked the mouse on a _____ then retreated into the darkness of the cave. The calico hissed in annoyance. His _____ fur bristling up. This was not the first time the _____ and _____ mountain cat had stolen the calico's prey. Since the calico was _____ and _____ it made him a natural target. He leaped from a rocky ledge into the _____ meadow below. There he caught a _____ and a _____. As the calico crouched to eat, the sunlight pooling down on him was suddenly intercepted. He turned around, ready to defend his prey, but shrunk back down and crouched into a _____ ball. It was the _____ and _____ cave _____. He picked himself up, dusted off his fur, and got ready to start over again.
