Treemonisha

One Adjective night Number years ago, I was lying in bed when I heard a Adjective little baby crying. Even though my husband, Ned, was Adjective I knew the sound was coming from outside. When the Noun started to fall from the sky, I couldn't hear the baby anymore and assumed that it was Adjective at last. The next morning, I went outside and felt the hot Noun shining on my face. I went to the tree and found the baby there sheltered by the cool shade of its Noun. I took the child into our Location and family and now the child is a lovely Adjective woman. All I've said to you is true, the child I've told you of is First name.
