Q and the Captain

In the midst of the _____ Color ending in ness _____ Pronoun came to him. As _____ First name was _____ Verb ending in ing lopsided on the ground (or whatever it was), he realized that he was not on Deneb IV.

_____ Pronoun found himself somewhere _____ Adjective somewhere with _____ Verb ending in ing _____ Color walls and floor and a strange man. Somehow _____ Pronoun recognized this man, though _____ Pronoun seemed like a lifetime ago the last time he had _____ Past tense verb him. The _____ Noun came to him, the memory of when this _____ Noun had sworn never to bother him or all of humanity ever again (by ever again he didn't mean just for all of his relatively _____ Adjective lifespan, he meant forever). It was _____ First name one annoying omnipotent being from the Q continuum. His job was to make sure all was well in the universe (well _____ Verb ending in ing that it would not end, rapidly that is). He didn't just look over our measly universe, but countless parallel universes as well. Entire _____ Plural noun living in harmony with our own (as long as _____ First name was there to make sure it _____ Past tense verb in _____ Adjective since every now and then the worlds clashed. _____ First name found that whenever they clashed, it happened always to a ship named _____ Noun. "Funny how things work like that"; _____ First name often thought).

_____ Pronoun didn't look after everything all by himself; of course he had other beings (also called Q) to help him out. All of these thoughts _____ Past tense verb through the captain's _____ Adjective bald head in less than a _____ Period of time. _____ First name knew it would be a day to regret, as _____ First name always had a way of making you think that with every choice you made there was a more beneficial alternative. _____ First name walked in a powerful fashion in his direction, saying "Oh, _____ Title (mr. miss captain etc) what have you gotten yourself into this time? The Borg came after you again? Or was it simply that human quality you like to call old age?";

The _____
Title (mr. miss captain etc) didn't know what to say. _____
First name didn't either, really, but

_____
Pronoun would not show that side of himself to _____
First name. That side of him that was always second-guessing himself, always uncertain, always wondering if what he did matched his intentions, or if

_____
Pronoun was totally contradicting. However, _____
First name didn't want to seem uncertain.

_____
Pronoun wanted to seem as if _____
Pronoun always knew what to do. If he could _____ Verb others,

maybe he could _____
Verb himself.
