Tree Hugger Billy

Once upon a time, there was a little boy called Billy and he was very passionate about the environment. He liked to create blogs about how to preserve energy and how people don't care about the environment. When he grew up he started to create a company named Tree Huggers. It was a company where people get to be free with their criticising to the government about what they are doing. That company got shut down so he started to build a gym for people who like to save the environment. He went outside to find trees being knocked down. He got a great idea, he would hug a tree for the rest of his life so they can't chop it down. He started it the next morning and it headlined the news and many people protesting. Billy was the best one hit on TV around the world. Tom Cruise tried to convince him to do something else but it didn't work even Winny The Pooh tried. One month later the SWAT moved in and cut down the tree. The tree fell on Billy and squashed him in the ground and made his own grave. Everyone then referred to him as Tree Hugger Billy.
