

The Replacements

1. Noun
2. Noun
3. Noun
4. Noun
5. Singer
6. Singer
7. Brand Name
8. Preposition
9. Adjective
10. Adjective
11. Preposition
12. Adjective
13. Preposition

The Replacements

I hop into the back of our _____^{Noun} covered, _____^{Noun} bear infested, _____^{Noun} _____^{Noun} stained mini van .My mother cranks her _____^{Singer} _____^{Singer} CD and begins to sing along. Her out-of-tune high-pitched voice is not music to my ears. I duck as we near school even though we're a block away. She stops the car, I grab my _____^{Brand name} kitty backpack that _____^{Preposition} had since first grade and wait for the _____^{Adjective} covered car to drive away. I start walking to school and my bat ears turn on. I hear the snickers and gossip all around me. Not only is my backpack bad but my whole wardrobe stinks. I have ballerina tights with ballet shoes and ribbons on them, a reindeer turtleneck, a kilt, and hiking boots because my mother won't let me buy my own clothes. My hair is a _____^{Adjective} mess thanks to my mean mother who won't let me straighten. _____^{Preposition} cut uneven because my half blind father insists on cutting it. As you can tell, I hate my parents. The whole day's bad because of course I have no friends and no life. That is my story of my _____^{Adjective} bad life. I can't wait till I can move out. After school as I walk to the filthy mini van. I find a newspaper on the ground. It read: DO YOU HATE YOUR PARENTS, FRIENDS OR NEIGHBORS? WELL, JUST CALL US: THE REPLACEMENTS. _____^{Preposition} ONLY 100 DOLLARS! CALL 503-222-3322.

WOW, I THOUGHT, I CAN TOTALLY DO THAT!!!! So a month later I, Maggie, had a makeup artist mother and a millionaire father. We wore rich, amazing clothes, great hair and makeup, and I had a ton of friends. Yay!

