Nothing to Fear 244-279 AA

Keeping a family name is one of the most important actions you can do to honor one who is no longer here.

_____ Noun now knows his father is never coming home, after reading a letter from another wife of a fellow traveler. He is _____ Adjective and confused at the same time; Danny wonders why his mother and Hank didnt tell him if they both knew for weeks. When his mother finally wakes up from a coma, Danny is happy that he will at least have one of his _____ Noun - Plural alive, but he is still _____ Adjective from his fathers death and thinks about what his family will do to survive without Mr. Garvey. About a year later Dannys question was _____ Verb - Past Tense, Hank and his mother got married, and Danny is not sure what to think of the marriage yet . After they married, Hank adopted Maureen and Patrick so he could raise them like they were his own. He also asked Danny if he could adopt him, but Danny refused because he was _____ Adverb a man himself, grown up to be just like his father. Danny knew how much it would mean to pa if he kept his given name, Daniel Tomas Garvey, which was Dannys fathers name, _____ Conjunction his father before that. This name has been in the family for many years, why would Danny want to give up a family name which he worked so hard to live up to? _____ interjection! Thats right, he wouldnt just throw away his families legacy. A family name is more than just a name; its a way of life and something you keep with you forever.
