Tangerine 60-87 Astrid

Fear can take over a person's life, but eventually you have to overcome it. Paul and some other soccer players had just been released from the principal's office, for they had just been cleared of suspicions that they had _____Verb - Base Form_____ the "Wonders of the World" exhibit at the carnival. It had been raining all day, and Joey Costello _____Conjunction_____ Paul were walking back to class, when the _____Adjective_____ walkways connecting the portable class rooms cracked and started to fall apart. Some of the teachers were able to realize what was happening and were able to get out, while some, like Paul's math _____Noun_____, remained inside. Before they knew it, a sinkhole was opening up and starting to swallow Mr. Ward's math class, Paul's class, _____Preposition_____ P-19. Paul realized what was happening and started to play the act of a hero, by _____Adverb_____ dashing to rescue the people from the drowning building. _____Pronoun_____ didn't back down and didn't leave the job to the others. Once everyone was out, the 7th and 8th graders made a mad dash to the main building. After the disaster, the kids who were uninjured rode the buses home to each of the doors personally. The new question is this: Where will the kids attend classes? When you are most afraid is when you need to be as brave as ever.
