At the Barber Shop

Today I went to the Old East Side Barber shop. When we pulled up there were two Noun - Plural sitting out front eating ice Noun. They Verb - Past Tense at the dog that passed by and took a Verb - Base Form of their cone. I came in and let the Proper Noun at the desk know I was here. He told me to take a seat next to the Adjective Noun by the window. I got a comic and sat down with a sound. There were some many Noun - Plural in there Verb - Present ends in ING, talking and having a good time. I listened to a Noun and his son while they Verb - Past Tense their day. We all Verb - Past Tense and just shook our heads. Everybody told stories some that were Adjective and some that were just plain Adjective. We laughed some more. Before I knew it, it was my turn in the Noun. I sat in the chair and I asked the Noun his name. He said name and asked me how I wanted my hair cut. I sat and watched the movie title movie playing in the corner of the room, while my Noun fell down my face. When I got home my family member said my hair looked Adjective!
