Second Trip to Big Lake

Jerry and I made or first _____ verb to the Big lake area (actually _____ name of town) right after High school . We went up and _____ Verb - Past Tense at River reservoir near _____ name of town, and also visited with his _____ family members plural who were living in _____ name of town at the time. I don't remember if we went the following year or not, but after that Jerry went in the Army and I went off to dental school and so it was 1974 or before we were both back in _____ name of city.

So it was sometime in '74 or '75 that we finally made another _____ verb. Jerry was _____ Verb - Present ends in _____ ING at the mines at that time, and as I remember he had worked _____ number or _____ number shifts straight just before we left. He had a big Chevy _____ vehicle that we drove up and soon after we left, Jerry had a couple _____ type of drink and was falling asleep. So I took over _____ Verb - Present ends in ING. Of course, I had no _____ Noun, and pretty much no idea of where we were headed (this time we were going to Big Lake), so I just kept going north. Every once in while Jerry would _____ verb up and say it looks like we are headed the right way. So, I kept driving. I don't remember if I actually knew the _____ Noun Big Lake,? or if I was just looking for a _____ body of water. Anyway, I finally came across a sign that said, something lake so and so, and I just followed that _____ Noun. After a short tour, I arrived at the _____ Noun of a lake and proceeded to _____ verb for jerry to wake up. When he did, needless to say, he didn't recognize the lake. Anyway the final result was that we _____ Verb - Past Tense and Jerry, now being a bit more alert, managed to get us to Big Lake. Since then I've had no trouble _____ Verb - Present ends in ING it.
