ONCE UPON A TIME there was a Adjective mother, who had to have a Colonostaphy. Doctor Garbonzo told her to drink plenty of water and stay in bed. This mother, however, had a Adjective side. Instead of drinking water, she drunk lots and lots of Diet Noun! When she was supposed to stay in bed, she Verb - Past Tense up the Noun - Plural and Verb - Past Tense from the Noun - Plural! This Adjective mother then Verb - Past Tense out the Noun and down East 8th Street. No one knew where she was going! Her very Adjective son followed close behind. When this mother came upon an ice cream shop, she Verb - Past Tense through the door, cut in front of every one in line, and demanded 7 scoops of Adjective Noun ice cream smothered in Noun sauce. After the Adjective haired man behind the counter gave her the ice cream, she Verb - Past Tense it down in 1 bite, and fled without paying. This mothers son went in after she left and paid the bill. Next, this Adjective mother came upon a zoo, with her very Adjective son following. This mother made freinds with all the animals, A-Z! She Verb - Past Tense up stream with the allagators, Verb - Past Tense on the backs of elaphants, Verb - Past Tense down the neck of a giraffe, Verb - Past Tense bananas with the monkeys, and rubbed sun screen on the walresses, one of which looked alot like Doctor Garbonzo! After that, this mother left the zoo and Verb - Past Tense down South 4th Street. She was heading strait for Doctor Garbonzos office! This mothers Adjective son tried to stop her by calling, "Mother, come back! Your heading for Doctor Garbonzos office!" But his mother did not stop. She ran right through the Noun, and Verb - Past Tense full force in to Doctor Garbonzo! Doctor Garbonzo looked at this Adjective mother with surprise and said, "Why, hello! I'm Adjective you came in today, I was just about to Verb - Past Tense you." He pulled something out from behind his back. Was it a shot? No, it was an Noun. "I've reviewed your xrays," The Doctor said, "and it looks like you won't have to have the Colonostaphy after all. It was just a little Noun!" This mother and her very Adjective son breathed a Noun of relief. This Adjective mother gave her son a big Noun. Doctor Garbonzo then picked up a very Adjective duffel bag, smiled, and said, "O.K. If you have no further questions for me, I will be going to my second job." This mother looked at her son Adverb and asked the doctor, "What is your second job?" Doctor Garbonzo replied, "Zoo keeper; I take care of the walresses!"
