How Day and Nick Met, Part 3

Despite Day being the _____ Adjective person that Nick met after his move to Hickory, they didn't get around to _____ Verb - Present ends in ING until two years later. Over the course of those years, their paths would cross occasionally and, surrounded by their _____ Noun - Plural, a friendship developed. Nick _____ Verb - Present ends in S _____ being _____ Verb - Past Tense when he knew Day would be hanging out and wondered if she felt the same. They shared a _____ Adjective ability to communicate with just a glance and always took pride in making each other laugh (and that was often).

It wasn't until after making the decision to move to _____ Location for graduate school that Day and Nick wised up and began to _____ Verb - Base Form more time together. That is when they both realized how great their connection had become, and they weren't ready to let it go.

After a little over _____ Number years of becoming masters of the long-distance relationship and then a few years of being together in Tuscaloosa, Day and Nick are looking forward to _____ Verb - Present ends in ING the knot this summer!
