Gwen's Day at the Doctor

One day, Gwen and Brittney took a field trip to get an physical. Like everything regarding and our internship, this of course was not an Adjective process. Per usual, Gwen and Brittney had a plan. They verb - Past Tense up the car, Britt was verb - Base Form, and off they went, or so they thought! It took only two across the same bridge before they realized they were lost and driving around in Noun - Plural, literally. FINALLY, they Verb - Past Tense in what seemed like the setting of a film, and entered an warehouse where the "doctor's office " was located.
After mounds of, and a number sitting in the waiting room, Brittney left Gwen alone to the handicapped. As they went their separate ways, there was no predicting what Gwen was in for. When her name was finally called by a, Noun . How ironic that the audiology student would suffer an Adjective hearing test, that was most likely done wrong, in a claustrophobic Noun. After a good Adjective from the nurse about keeping the booth door open, Gwen continued to an uneventful exam.
Adverb came an Adjective medical interview with a complete stranger. After an uncomfortable series of very personal Noun-Plural, she was left alone to strip down and put on a flimsy paper Noun -

Next entered yet another strange apparently qualified to judge whether she is competent for the Meanwhile, back in the waiting room, Britt waits patiently after completing her 5 minute exam, while Gwen's personal Noun is Verb - Past Tense.
In the end, Gwen did survive the physical; however, she may need many months of fact, she was so ; we got lost again on the way home and did another 2 loops across the very Steel Bridge. It is an experience still too to joke about.
