A Gastronomic Romance

When Mary's _____Noun_____ Natalie found out that both Mary and her _____Noun_____ shared a love of _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____ and vintage _____Noun_____, she knew it was a match made in heaven. The future Mr. and Mrs. met at a _____Noun_____ _____Noun_____ for Mary at the _____Name of a Restaurant_____ Hour. Mary was intrigued by Natalie's _____Adjective_____ guest and so she schemed up a double date for Natalie and her boyfriend and Dave. The date was cancelled, but Dave still wanted to spend more time with Mary, and so, 2, they had their first date. Both thought that just drinks were in order, but they ended up having a dinner of _____Noun_____ bone marrow and _____Noun_____ bread together.

Dave waited a whole twelve hours before chatting online with Mary after the first date and it wasn't long before the two were officially an item.

Mary thinks that the most memorable date was a surprise visit to the Kitchen Table at the Aviary. The Kitchen Table included a front-row seat to Aviary's most delectable boozy concoctions. They chased down this pricey fare with a hot dog.

Dave knew he wanted to marry Mary when he had an opportunity to move to New York and he realized he didn't want to leave her behind. That was almost two months after they started dating.

Dave proposed to Mary a mere 6 months and 22 days after their first date, dazzling her with a stunning and modern diamond ring from Tiffany's after "only" a 15 mile bike ride. Dave said he chose to do so because he wanted Mary to have positive connotations of biking. Mary was just self-conscious because she was all sweaty and gross from the exercise. She was also wearing boy bicycle shorts.

They

are getting married at Legation Gallery on October 20 in Cleveland. True to their romance, their wedding reception will be a classy dinner at the delicious new restaurant, Spicer.

Mary hopes to have a family with at least one daughter named Andreia and a dachshund named Poppy. Dave hopes to have no daughters and strapping son named Walden.
