Candid

Wilbur was a Adjective fellow. His motto was "Noun is always the best policy!" One day, as he was walking to school he Adverb pointed out there was boogers coming out Victoria's nose. Victoria got mighty offended and called him Adjective. As he was getting to class, he noticed Brian was sagging his pants too low. He Adverb told him to pull his pants up. Wilbur believed without Noun, this world would be a corrupted place. His Adjective belief got admiration from adults and annoyance from his fellow peers.
