One day, I decided that I wanted to go out into the hall, so I began to open my door. Just as I turn the handle, I hear a loud Sound. I wondered what it could be... I slowly turned to corner to see Name staring at me as he proceeded to verb the door once more. I am fairly sure he ended up same verb the door number times. I once talked to my friend Name about it. He had said that he saw Name Body Part in a reflection of his object and was very Adjective. But it's ok because Same Name TWO is Adjective. I also once heard of a student who had to go repair his object at Vorhees. He almost went there every day to get it repaired...to no avail. Among the other people on our floor their is a Polish dude who like to verb noun, A french dude who always verb noun, and a crazy white dude who like to verb in his bare shorts. I always look away when he walks in, but my friend Name likes to stare...I don't no why. But above all, the craziest thing I've seen here was when someone pulled the object at 2 in the morning...we still don't know who did it, but I think we can say he was Adjective to say the least. I was Adjective because I had to go to Class the next day early. Anyways...all is good...although I'd rather eat my plural noun than Sodexo.
