Brain nerds!

Once upon a           Noun           there was a poor           Adjective           man stuck in           Noun           class. He           Verb - Past Tense           trying to figure out how he was going to pass the brain test. He sucks at memorization. So he started out by           Verb - Present Tense           the           Noun - Plural           with           Noun - Plural           that go along with the names of them. So for example the frontal lobe he colored fusia so he associates           Noun           with frontal lobe on the test. Now he saw           Noun           area.... And thought oh goodness I don't even know what this is! So what better thing to use but           Verb           to find           Noun - Plural          . He found out that it is the ability to           Verb           speech. So He associated broca with broken speech. To memorize the lobes, he uses the phrase           Noun           passed out too! Franny=frontal lobe, passed= parietal lobe, occipital lobe, and temporal= too! He is feeling a lot more           Adjective           for his exam, after coming up with these           Noun - Plural          .
