

The Onion: Politics

1. Proper Noun _____
2. Adjective _____
3. Location _____
4. Proper Noun _____
5. Verb - Past Tense _____
6. Noun _____
7. Noun - Plural _____
8. Adverb _____
9. Location _____
10. Proper Noun _____
11. Adjective _____
12. Adverb _____
13. Adverb _____
14. Adverb _____
15. Location _____
16. Location _____
17. Noun _____
18. Proper Noun _____
19. Proper Noun _____
20. Verb - Past Tense _____
21. Noun _____
22. Part Of Body _____
23. Adjective _____

24. Noun _____

25. Adverb _____

26. Noun _____

27. Verb - Past Tense _____

28. Verb - Past Tense _____

29. Location _____

The Onion: Politics

CANTON, OH--As part of an effort to cut into President _____ Proper Noun lead in the _____ Adjective swing state of _____ Location, Mitt _____ Proper Noun reportedly _____ Verb - Past Tense at full speed Monday around the entire state screaming "_____ Noun _____!" at the top of his _____ Noun - Plural while smiling and waving _____ Adverb. "Hello, _____ Location! How ya doing? Hi! How is everybody? I'm Mitt _____ Proper Noun!" the _____ Adjective, sweat-drenched candidate spat out _____ Adverb as he tore across the state without pause, _____ Adverb kissing babies and tossing them _____ Adverb over his shoulder in a mad dash that has now taken him through 30 of _____ Location 88 counties. "The beautiful state of _____ Location! Go _____ Noun! Jobs! Ohio! Hello! I'm Mitt _____ Proper Noun!" At press time, _____ Proper Noun had reportedly _____ Verb - Past Tense through the plate-glass front _____ Noun of a North Canton bar, scrambled to his _____ Part of Body, wolfed down a _____ Adjective plate of _____ Noun, waved to restaurant patrons for five seconds, _____ Adverb stammered out a few words about the _____ Noun, _____ Verb - Past Tense out through the front door, and _____ Verb - Past Tense in the direction of _____ Location.