Age of Reason Text

By what means, may I ask, do you expect to conquer _____? If _____ could not _____ it in the summer, when our army was less than yours, nor in the winter, _____ we had _____, how are you to do it? In point of _____ you have been outwitted, and in point of _____ outdone; your advantages turn out to your loss, and show us that it is in our power to ruin you by _____: like a game of drafts, we can move out of one square to let you come in, in order that we may afterwards take _____ or _____ for _____; and as we can _____ _____ a double corner for ourselves, we can always prevent a total defeat. You cannot be so _____ as not to see that we have _____ to one the advantage of you, because we conquer by a _____ game, and _____ lose _____ it. _____ might have taught your _____ this knowledge; he has been long a student in the doctrine of chances. I have no other idea of conquering _____ than by _____ the _____ which defend them : have you done this, or can you do it? If you have not, it would be civil in you to let your _____ alone for the present; otherwise, you will ruin more Tories by your grace and favor, than you will Whigs by your
_____.
