Prom

I couldn't wait to go to my friend Britni's house in the country for our small prom. It wasn't really a prom it was just Britni, my sisters, our other friends, and me. After we put on makeup we put on our prom dresses, mine was a Adjective one that didn't clash with my red Noun, which my friend had Verb - Base Form earlier she had just cut the bangs a bit but interjection it looked great! We skipped Adverb over to the Noun that was on the property and did a small photo shoot. Most of the pictures we took were really Adjective but we didn't really care. After we took our pictures we Verb - Past Tense back to the house so we wouldn't freeze, even though it wasn't cold out. We all began to sing Adverb as we noticed that one of our favorite songs was playing we all danced around and had a fantastic time.

Later that night we made a Betty Crocker cake to celebrate that night, we even put in some blue candles directly after pulling it out of the oven. We didn't realize until we pulled out the candles that candles will melt in a Adjective cake. We forgot to grab Noun - Plural so we ate it with our hands and laughed and Verb - Past Tense all night. So it wasn't really a prom but it was close enough.
