Eisenman

How would you like to be given the challenge to create a city which reflects the way of life of the locals?
First Name of a Person Eisenman was give this task and attacked this using his normal deconstruction and methods. This lead to a series of buildings which create Adjective spaces and more than take the culture of the city, such as taking the city next to the new center and the street line across the entire project. To impose more culture Noun required thatlocal stone to line the building. After that he took the sites topography and made his building have the same shape as the so they don't look like the site had in a sense changed.
The project has been a large learning curve for workers to the style works in and thus his projects help both industries with large design bases and application bases for the industry. This project will take the already famous to new levels and make de Compostela, Location a large Byent destination. The whole idea of fully taking the city around the project and using is incredible. There is a building on the far end of the complex to look like a which the city is known for verb - Present ends in ING
