Over the Rainbow

Once upon a Noun there was a girl named Dorothy She got swept up in a Noun and wasn't in Proper Noun anymore. Her Noun Verb - Past Tense on a witch, who everyone thought was Adjective, but she really wasn't. The witch's name was Nessaroe. Nessaroe had a Adjective Noun named Elphaba who was the wicked Noun of the west. Dorothy left on the Adjective Noun road. On her way along the Noun she took up with a practicer of a profession, a practicer of a profession, and a Adverb lion. The quartet went to the Emerald City along with a Scottish Noun named Toto. They got high in a field of Noun - Plural and fell asleep. They met the Wizard of Oz, but he was nothing but a Noun and a Noun. They went to see the Wicked Witch of the Adjective. They thought she would be really Adjective, but she wasn't. She invited them in for drink and food-plural. A Animal pooped on the witch and in an attempt to Verb - Base Form it off, Dorothy threw a bucket of Noun on the witch. She melted into a Adjective Adjective puddle. Dorothy was a little disturbed by just having Verb - Past Tense another person. She was never quite the same after that. Luckily, after some more Noun - Plural, Dorothy woke up in her Noun, at Noun, in Proper Noun. The whole thing was just a Noun.
