Red Riding Hood

Once upon a time there was a ______ little ______ who was loved by everyone who looked at her, but most of all by her grandmother, and there was nothing that she would not have given to the Noun. Once she verb her a little riding Noun of red velvet, which suited her so well that she would never wear anything else; so she was always called 'Little Adjective Riding Hood.' One Noun Pronoun mother said to her: 'Come, Little Adjective Riding Hood, here is a piece of cake and a bottle of wine; take them to your grandmother, she is ill and weak, and they will do her good. Set out before it gets ______, and when you are going, walk nicely and quietly and do not run off the path, or you may fall and break the bottle, and then your grandmother will get nothing; and when you go into her room, don't forget to say, "Good morning", Conjunction don't Verb into every corner before you do it.' 'I will take great care,' said Little Adjective Riding Noun to her Noun , and gave her hand on it. The grandmother lived out in the wood, half a league from the village, and just as Little Red Riding Hood entered the wood, a wolf met her. _____ Riding Hood did not know what a wicked creature he was, and was not at all afraid of him. 'Good Noun, Little Adjective Riding Hood,' said he. 'Thank you kindly, _____.'

'Whither away so early, Little Red Riding _____?'

my grandmother's.'

'What have you got in your apron?'

'Cake and wine; yesterday was baking-day, so poor sick grandmother is to have something good, to make her stronger.'

'Where does your Noun live, Little Red Riding Hood?'

'A good quarter of a league farther on in the wood; her house stands under the three Adjective oak-trees, the nut-trees are just below; you Adverb must know it,' replied Little Adjective Riding Hood.

The wolf thought to himself: 'What a tender young creature! what a nice plump mouthful - she will be better to eat than the old woman. I must act _______, so as to catch both.'

So he walked for a short time by the side of Little Red Riding Hood, and then he said: 'See, Little Red Riding Hood, how pretty the flowers are about here - why do you not look round? I verb, too, that you do not hear how Adverb the little birds are verb - Present ends in ING; you walk gravely along as if you were going to school, while everything else out here Preposition the wood is merry.' Little Red Riding Hood raised her eyes, and when she saw the sunbeams dancing here and there through the trees, and pretty flowers Verb - Present ends in ING everywhere, she thought: 'Suppose I take grandmother a fresh nosegay; that would please her too. It is so early in the day that I shall still get there Preposition...

So she ran from the path into the wood to look for flowers. And whenever she had picked one, she fancied that saw a still prettier one farther on, and ran after Pronoun, and so got deeper and deeper into the wood. Meanwhile the wolf ran straight to the grandmother's house and Verb - Past Tense Preposition the door.

'Who is there?'

'Little Red Riding Hood,' replied the wolf. 'She is bringing cake and wine; open the door.'

verb the latch,' verb out the grandmother, 'I am too weak, and cannot get up.' The wolf lifted the latch, the door sprang open, and without saying a word he went straight to the grandmother's bed, and devoured her. Then he put on her clothes, dressed himself in her cap, verb himself in bed and drew the curtains.

Little Red Riding Hood, however, had been running about Verb - Present ends in ING flowers, and when she had gathered so many that she could carry no more, she Verb - Past Tense her grandmother, and set out on the way to her.

She was surprised to find the cottage-door Verb - Present ends in ING open, and when she went into the room, she had such a strange feeling that she said to herself: 'Oh dear! how uneasy I feel today, and at other times I like being with grandmother so much.' She called out: 'Good morning,' but Verb - Past Tense no answer; so she went to the bed and drew back the curtains. There lay her grandmother with her cap Verb far over her face, and Verb - Present ends in ING very strange.

Interjection ! grandmother,' she said, 'what big ears you have!'

the better to hear you with, my child,' was the reply.

'But, grandmother, what Adjective eyes you have!' she said.

'All the better to see you with, my dear.'

'But, grandmother, what Adjective hands you have!'

'All the better to hug you with.'

______! but, grandmother, what a _______ big mouth you have!'

'All the better to eat you with!'

And scarcely had the wolf said this, than with one bound he was out of bed and swallowed up Red Riding Hood. When the wolf had appeased his appetite, he lay down again in the bed, fell asleep and began to snore very Adjective.

The huntsman was just passing the house, and thought to himself: 'How the old woman is verb - Present ends in ING ! I must just see if she wants anything.' So he went into the room, and when he came to the bed, he saw that the wolf was lying in it.

'Do I find you here, you old sinner!' Verb - Past Tense Pronoun. 'I have long sought you!' But just as he was going to fire at him, it occurred to him that the wolf might have devoured the grandmother, and that she might still be Verb - Past Tense, so he did not fire, but took a pair Preposition scissors, and began to cut open the stomach of the sleeping wolf.

and the little girl sprang out, Verb - Present ends in ING: 'Ah, how frightened I have been! How dark it was inside the wolf.'

After that the aged Noun came out alive also, but scarcely able to breathe. Adjective Riding Hood, however, _______ fetched great _______ with which they filled the wolf's belly, and when he awoke, he wanted to run away, but the stones were so heavy that he collapsed at once, and fell dead. Then all three were delighted. The Noun drew off the wolf's skin and went home with it; the grandmother Verb the cake and drank the wine which Red Riding Noun had brought, and revived. But Red Riding Hood thought to herself: 'As long as I live, I will never leave the by myself to run into the wood, when my mother has forbidden me to do so.' It is also related that once, when Red Riding Hood was again taking cakes to the old grandmother, another wolf verb to her, and tried to verb her from the path. Red Riding Hood, however, was on her guard, and went straight forward on her way, and told her grandmother that she had met the wolf, and that he had said 'good morning' to her, but with such a wicked look in his eyes, that if they had not verb on the public road she was certain he would have ______ her up.

Interjection _____,' said the grandmother, 'we will shut the door, so that he can not come in.'

Soon afterwards the wolf knocked, and cried: 'Open the door, grandmother, I am Little Adjective Riding Hood, and am bringing you some cakes.'

But they did not speak, or open the door, so the grey-beard stole twice or thrice round the house, and at last jumped on the roof, intending to wait until Adjective Riding Hood went home in the Noun, and then

to steal after her and devour her in the darkness. But the grandmother saw what was in his thoughts.

In front of the house was a great Noun trough, so she said to the Noun: 'Take the pail, Red Riding Hood; I made some sausages yesterday, so Verb the water in which I Verb them to the trough.'

______ Riding Hood carried until the great trough was quite full. Then the smell of the sausages reached the wolf, and he sniffed and peeped down, and at last stretched out his neck so far that he could no longer keep his footing and began to _______, and slipped down from the roof straight into the great _______, and was _______. But Red Riding Hood went joyously _______, and no one ever did anything to harm her again.
