More stories at WordBlanks.com

The Boy and the Brown Coiled Snake

1. Noun _____
2. Verb - Base Form _____
3. Noun - Plural _____
4. Verb - Base Form _____
5. Verb - Present Ends In S _____

The Boy and the Brown Coiled Snake

Once, there was a boy who loved to play with _____Noun_____. He loved to pull it, cut it, and even wrap it around himself! One day, he was walking along the Limpala River bank when he happened by a rope. It was neatly coiled and there was no one around, so he stopped and poked once in a part of the rope that was bigger than all the other parts.

The boy heard a slight _____Verb - Base Form_____ and the big end of the rope uncoiled! It had 2 glaring eyes and a wonderously forked-tongue. "Why, I have never seen a rope that had _____Noun - Plural_____ before!", laughed the boy. "Come closer and you will laugh much more", hissed the rope (who, in actuality, was a very pleased Burmese Rock Python.)

The boy leaned closer and...he was out of breath. The rope was squeezing him as tight as could be! Finally, the boy was about to _____Verb - Base Form_____ when he saw what was inside the mouth of a Burmese Rock Python. No one ever saw him again, but his ghost _____Verb - Present ends in S_____ the Limpala River searching for that same Burmese Rock Python.

©2026 WordBlanks.com · All Rights Reserved.