Going to the Movies

I am a Noun fanatic. When friends want to know what Noun won the Oscar in 1980 or who played the Noun Noun in Jaws, they ask me. My friends, though, have stopped the theater itself, and the behavior of some patrons are all reasons why I often wait for a movie to show up on TV.
First of all, just getting to the theaterverb - Present ends in S difficulties. Leaving a home equipped with a TV and a video recorder isn't an attractive idea on a humid, cold, or night. Even if the weather cooperates, there is still a drive to the theater down a highway, followed by the hassle of looking for a parking space. And then there are the Noun-Plural. After Verb-Present ends in ING yourself to the end of a human chain, you worry about whether there will be enough Noun - Plural, whether you will get Noun - Plural together, and whether many people will verb - Base Form into the line ahead of you.
Once you have made it to the box office and gotten your tickets, you are confronted with theNoun - Plural of the theater itself. If you are in one of the run-down theaters, you must adjust to the smell of seldom-cleaned carpets. Escaped springs lurk in the faded plush or cracked leather seats, and half the seats you sit in seem loose or tilted so that you sit at a angle. The newer twin and quad theaters offer their problems. Sitting in an area only one-quarter the size of a regular theater, moviegoers often have to put up with the sound of the next door. This is especially Verb - Present Tense

when the other movie involves racing cars or a war and you are trying to enjoy a quiet story. And whether the theater is old or new, it will have that seem to be coated with rubber cement. By the end of a movie, almost have to be pried off the floor because they have become sealed to a deadly compound of spilled soda, bubble gum, and gummy worms.
Some of the patrons are even more of a problem than the theater itself. Little kids race up and down the aisles, usually in packs. Teenagers try to impress their by talking back to the screen, whistling, and making what they consider to be hilarious noises. Adults act as if they were at home in their own living rooms and comment on the ages of the stars or why movies aren't as good anymore. And people of all ages verb - Non 3rd Person Singular Present candy wrappers, stick gum on their seats, and drop popcorn tubs or cups of crushed ice and soda on the floor. They also and, stand, and you out of the armrest on either side of your seat.
After arriving home from the movies one night, I that I was not going to be a moviegoer anymore. I was tired of the Noun-Plural involved in getting to the movies and dealing with the theater itself and some of the patrons. The next day I arranged to have TV service installed in my home. I may now see movies a bit later than other people, but I'll be more watching box office hits in the comfort of my own Noun room.
