Good Manners Make Good Sense

Last week, I received a/an Adjective letter from a/an Adjective reader of this Adjective column. He asked how he could make a/an Adjective on the Noun - Plural of his friend. The answer is quite Adjective. All parents respond Adjective to Adjective manners. Be well mannered and they will welcome you into their Noun with open Noun - Plural. If by chance you are invited to dinner, remember to never Verb - Base Form with Noun in your Part of Body, ever rest your Noun - Plural on the table, and never, never pick up Noun - Plural with your Part of Body. Speaking of fingers, another young man recently wrote and asked me, "What's wrong with picking you Noun in private?" Everything! As I always say, good manners make good sense.
