Conversation Heart Mad Lib

Once upon a time, there was a beautiful peasant girl named Heart Message who lived in a cottage in the middle of the woods. One day, a handsome prince rode by and saw her in her garden. He stopped and said to her, "Heart Message." Shocked that anyone important would be riding in her woods, the girl answered, "Heart Message." The prince immediately fell in love with her and was determined to marry her someday. He visited the girl's cottage every day, and said many romantic things to her like "Heart Message," "Heart Message," and "Heart Message." He told the girl that she was very , and that she was undeniably the Heart Message Heart Message he had ever known. He knew that she was his Heart Message, and he wanted to give her Heart Message.

In spite of all this attention, the girl remained cold and unaffected. When the prince came to talk to her, she usually replied, "Heart Message" or "Heart Message." The prince was certainly not Heart Message enough for her, and he would never be her Heart Message.

One day, the prince decided that he could bear this no longer. If she would not love him back, today would be his last visit. He approached her cottage and shouted something he had never dared to say before: "Heart Message!" Astonished, the girl replied, "Heart Message," and ran into his arms. They soon were married and lived happily ever after.
