Medical Madlib

Many years ago, there was a scientist named _____Proper Noun_____. He/She lived in a _____Adjective_____, _____Adjective_____ house with their _____Noun_____. He/She worked in an infirmary on a military base during the Civil War. He/She enjoyed his/her work because they got to see lots of gross stuff. It was common to see _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____ coming from patient's bodies. Gun shots left _____Adjective_____ wounds on people's _____Noun_____. Lots of infections caused _____Adjective_____ _____Adjective_____ puss to seep from everywhere you could think of. To work there, you had to have a strong stomach. Sometimes he/she would try to create new cures for diseases and illnesses. He/She tried to mix _____Noun_____ with _____Noun_____ to cure pneumonia. Unfortunately, this did not work and their patient died soon after their "treatment". I wish I could say he/she was eventually successful but, he/she simply was not a bright thinker. For example, they thought jumping into a river could cure their problems with thinking. Sadly, he/she forgot that he/she can't swim and that was the cause of his/her demise.
