opposites attract

They say opposites attract, and this friendship is a clear example of how true that statement is. Yes, they've got _____ Amount things in common, like their love of small black _____ Noun - Plural and rice krispie _____ Noun - Plural and their hatred of female _____ Occupation - Plural, but they're personalities simply couldn't be more different. Melanie is completely _____ Adjective and this friend is _____ Adjective and reserved but it hasn't hindered them at all. They share a passion for great movies which leave you with the most quotable lines like "you scratch my _____ Body Part and I'll scratch yours," or "de ja jealous _____ Girls Name?" And though you usually can't catch Melanie at _____ Place on a Saturday night watching SNL live like her friend, she definitely appreciates a great Gilly or Stephan skit as well. Melanie likes to think of herself as a _____ Adjective gal, and she definitely shares that attribute with this friend, who is the ultimate poem _____ Verb - ends in ER, and Melanie looks forward to her birthday post each year. Their friendship has been through a lot over the years, and survived, from all of the times Melanie harassed this friend, grabbing her _____ Body Part on the reg, and when Melanie, being a nave high school senior "tested" her friend in a pretty _____ Adjective way. But that's not to say Melanie hasn't brought any _____ Adjective memories into this friends life, like the time she got her drunk for the first time and when Melanie encouraged her to make bad decisions with certain people. But if we're being honest, Melanie doesn't just like this friend for her, she happens to be _____ Verb - ends in ED with this friend's family and wants to hang out with them every chance she can, and though she has never made it to one of their infamous _____ Holiday parties she definitely enjoys spending a nice _____ Relative - ends in S day gourmet _____ Food meal with them instead. They've shared a bed many times, and even were roommates for one Adjective month, but what it comes down to is that this MANJ'S Body Part is always one Melanie can always cry on, and there will clearly be many tears on the road to Melanie's big day.
