Margaret

They say _____ Adjective impressions are very important, but this story is a good example of why they might not always be . Melanie's first memory of this girl is her _____ Adverb walking into Melanie's tiny ship room in tears. Melanie thought, "what a freak, she's crying as we leave to _____ Verb around the world? Not so into this girl..." and look 5 years later and they're still best friends . Who knows when things really took a turn for the better, but they started to have fun together almost immediately. At Senor _____ Noun - Plural in Puerto Rico , sailing to small islands in Brazil and by Valentine's Day, things were a done deal. Not only had they spent countless hours making _____ Adjective videos to send to their boyfriends back home, but Melanie had seen this girl in _____ Adjective tears and it was one of the most entertaining things she'd ever seen. Melanie will never forget those _____ Adjective words, "can one be mineeeee?" Melanie was just their friendship hadn't begun in the _____ Country, because her new friend had seen and avoided Melanie and her roommate. While on SAS they had many wild adventures, like when Melanie would say the most outrageous things to the foreign _____ Noun drivers, when they went _____ Verb - Present ends in ING in Hawaii, which Melanie can completely thank her friend for since she funded it in its entirety, when her friend tricked her into taking a _____ Noun of something awful, maybe hot sauce and tequila and Melanie returned the favor by _____ Verb - Present ends in ING water on her head, which of course made her cry, or the time they went out for hibachi at the very end of their time in Japan and got themselves docktime, or when they showed up in Tokyo with no _____ Noun reservations and ended up staying at a super fancy hotel thanks to some _____ Adjective business men, and of course, the _____ Adjective day her friend was paralyzed. Thanks to her, Melanie saw basically nothing in _____ Country, but she'd do it all again. Well maybe except for the part when the entire bus stared as her friend was wheeled on a Noun to a Noun and decided that was the moment she was getting better and could go on the trip. But their friendship didn't end when they got off the ship, in fact it's only grown stronger over the years. Melanie actually should thank her friend for her engaged status today, because when her friend Verb - Past Tense her at Preakness, she spent a lot of the time with Joe and it was a big turning point for their relationship! During their senior year when they visited friends from abroad for spring break, they had no idea they'd actually just be taking a trip to Colorodo to visit each other, but it's okay they had fun anyway. Plus, they decided to Adverb drive Number hours to Vegas for only Number night, but at least they were with super Adjective girls and got the royal Vegas treatment. But alas their cheap Noun back to Boulder was too Adjective to be true, since it left them stranded Number minutes outside the city with no one willing to come get them. Hopefully Melanie will one day be forgiven for not being willing to get on a very Adjective guy's Noun for a quick ride over to Boulder. Potentially the biggest regret of Melanie's life? But hopefully Melanie's done enough to be redeemed, like coming for less than Number hours to NYC for her friend's Adjective night on the east coast. The point is, they'll always be there for each other and Melanie couldn't imagine her big day without this friend by her side, ready to tell a Adjective story at any moment.

So, Full Name of a Person , will you please do me the honor of being my Noun as I Verb -
