Camping

It was a cold, Adjective night. Sara and Jane Adverb sat around the campfire, singing songs and eating Noun.

Soon they got tired, Adverb climbed into their cozy Adjective bags, and eventually fell asleep.

Suddenly, they were both wide awake. There was a loud Noun sound outside the tent. Jane grabbed Sara's Noun and held on for dear life. Sara started chanting, "Lions and Noun - Plural and Noun - Plural, oh my!" over and over again. Jane closed her eyes Adverb stood behind Sara.

Then into their tent fell their friend Cindy. Cindy had been thirsty and had gone into the house for some Noun. Now the water was on the floor of their tent. It took Sara and Jane a moment to remember where they were. Eventually, they all had a good laugh and went back to Noun.

It turned out to be a very Adjective yet frightful camping trip. And maybe next time they'll even leave Jane's backyard.
