A Train Ride Away

She woke to the sound of her alarm clock _____Verb - Present Tense_____. After checking the time quickly her tired brain decided that she had roughly _____Number_____ minutes of sleep that she could still use up.

Needless to say she woke up _____Adverb_____ minutes later and panicked upon realizing that she would be very late to class. The whole process of pulling on clean _____Noun - Plural_____ and grabbing her _____Noun - Plural_____ was an adrenalin rush better than _____Noun_____.

By the time she got to the _____Adverb_____ she only had ten minutes to go to get to her class. As she stood on the platform waiting for that train to school she contemplated the stern look on her _____Adjective_____ face if she were to come in late.

Being late would mean she would miss the entire class since her professor would lock the _____Coordinating conjunction_____ immediately.

But soon enough the train arrived and the girl pushed her way in. She tapped her _____Noun_____ and hummed _____Adverb_____ waiting as the train stopped at each station, opened the doors for a good minutes and was on it's way again.

Soon

enough, she had reached the station of her school and darted out of the train. She was not watching where she stepped though and almost fell down the _____Noun - Plural_____.

She reached her classroom just as the _____Coordinating conjunction_____ rang and slammed her bag down with joy. MADE IT! she cried to herself.

_____Adverb_____ minutes later, a representative from the _____Preposition or subordinating conjunction_____ walked in and said "Class, your professor won't make it today..."
