Noun Practice #1

Last week, I took a Noun to Proper Noun - city name to visit the noun - place of Fine Noun . My son Proper Noun - name and I saw several different kinds of art represented, including Noun - Plural from ancient proper noun - country , paintings from the Adjective masters, and Noun - Plural from Italy. While we verb ending in -ed along the galleries, we noticed that there was a statue of a woman called " Proper Noun - name ." The craftsmanship was amazing - the statue looked so Adjective . The plaque below stated that it had been verb in Proper Noun - city name in 1990. That seemed Adjective , since it looked so Adjective . As we watched, we looked closely at the statue's Noun . Then, it blinked! We verb ending in -ed ! No way! This wasn't a statue at all. It was a piece of living Noun - a person dressed and decorated like a statue who stood still for hours at a time! We left wondering what the city by the Noun would offer us next.
