Shawnia and J.P. - The Quest!

Once upon a time there was a funny, funky, Adjective gal who had beautiful curly hair. Strangers would Verb her in the street to comment on her hair, it is that Adjective. Caring for her hair and Verb - Present Tense only took up so much of her precious time, so she decided to Verb a search for love and Noun. She began this quest on the world-wide -web, Verb - Present Tense out various dating sites. At Adjective this was just a Noun Noun, however it soon developed into serious business. What doesn't kill you makes you Adjective - Comparative --right? So this gal, named Shawnia, who could be very random at times, had to Adverb be tested. She was subjected to some Adjective dates. One guy, who will be forever referred to as Rage, was apparently still married when they went out. He decided to use this Noun as a time to rage about his current, soon-to-be ex-wife. This gal, was no glutton for punishment so she Verb - Past Tense him and called him -Rage--a Adjective nickname. He didn't agree. Problem solved for a while. Ahhhh, we Determiner must be tested, and so the Noun - Plural continued and the stories, were interesting, but had us all wondering -where are all the good Noun - Plural ??? During this time, her Adjective friends Kristina and Julie would Verb patiently, provide support, a Noun to cry on, give our 2 cents worth, and secretly Verb the right Noun would appear. Shawina lived close to her friends Kristina and Julie and would often be over to visit and to Verb at the TV, during football season. During the summer, she would come over to watch the show, So you think you can Verb. It was witnessed and Verb - Past Participle by her friends that Shawnia was texting a lot. The sound of Chewbacca would ring out, or R2 D2, from Star wars for which was included among the following obsessions: The Chicago Bears, hating Peyton Manning, frogs, her hair, Starbucks, and being random. I digress, the text messaging was getting Adjective. J.P. a dude in Law enforcement, who is bald (with a goatee) and who adores Irish Music made his Noun. Exclamations were made like "Way to go Beef!" and "You Jack" (but used in a positive way) --translation --Way to Go! The story does not end here. J.P. had to pass Adjective tests. He had to withstand the singing of various girl scout camp songs and stories of Shawnia's childhood. J.P. had to be Verb - Past Participle and integrated into all of Shawnia's life --meeting new Noun - Plural, like the Ogdens! Shawnia too had introduced to J.P.'s family and friends, and daughters. Luckily they fully Verb - Past Tense Shawnia, and her wonderful randomness, and quirks, and phenomenal personality. We are now all looking forward to May 31st, 2013 where they will Verb to each other and begin the awesome adventure of marriage! We love you and wish you the best! Your friends.
