Actress Lindsay Lohan violated her probation Thursday by _____ a Newport Beach rehab facility where she was to begin 90 days of treatment in a reckless driving case, prosecutors said.

Mark Heller, Lohan's attorney, told Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge James Dabney on Thursday morning that his client had already begun her therapy at the Morningside Recovery facility. Lohan arrived at the facility about 11 a.m.

Santa Monica City Prosecutor Terry White said he learned that Lohan spent just a few minutes at the Orange County rehab before leaving. "Ms. Lohan is in violation of her probation, that much is clear," he said.
