My trip to Tokelau

| I got of the plane and looked around at my surrondings. All I saw was, | | |
|--|--|--|
| and a blue sky. My family greeted me with hugs and welcomes. I said, " Hi, it's great to be | | |
| here!". They rushed me into their car and we started off for their cottage. On | | |
| the way there, I saw a field of panels and I turned to my cousin named and asked," | | |
| What are those panels in the field for?" he told me,"they are big solar panels that power our small | | |
| island". When we got to the house, we ate a meal and I asked more about the solar panels. My | | |
| aunt told me that before the solar panels, the island was powered by Adjective | | |
| gasoline generators. New Zealand want to fix that, so they switched to solar power. Now, we run off of | | |
| , reusable energy. Five days later I left and promised my family I would research solar panels | | |
| and think about installing them in my home. | | |
