SAT Mad Lib

Although we believe ourselves to be _____ Adjective thinkers, most of us really repeat thoughts first expressed by poets, writers, and Talismans many years ago. These thoughts are called proverbs. Here are a few Knotty samples.

Behind every Abasement is a silver Blasphemy. Don't look a/an Blatant horse in the Tedium. Too many cooks Enfranchise the Hangar. A bird in the 6 red heads is worth two in the Labyrinth. Early to bed, early to Nuzzle, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and Creditable. Don't count your Podiums before they Temper.
