The Guys I Have Dated

There was Jimmy any random last name, we went out in grade number and he practically begged me to date him. I thought he was kinda Adjective, but his clothes never matched. To our season dance, he wore color fleece plural clothing and animal -print plural clothing with an over-sized silk color article of clothing. Ugh, memories! I dumped him number days later and told him he was too Adjective for me!

Then there was a emotion guy named type of nut Wickerbelt, I know right? The name alone makes you wanna verb. I dated him on a dare one night out with the plural nationality - indians hindus etc. He was sooo Adjective and Adjective. He wore these anxient plural year - fiftys or eighties etc glasses with big color shape frames and his teeth were always color! He tried to kiss me one evening, but I purposely moved my body part and he ended up kissing my body part, lol! We broke up time frame - days years minutes etc later.

random nickname was a hot dude. He was captain of the sport team and had a really Adjective smile. I was so Adjective when he asked me out. Our first date was at the random place - barn yard or home depot etc, he won me a animal and bought me a Noun that was personally signed by celebrity! I still have it on my Noun in my room of house. I loved the way he verb ending in ED, verb ending in ED and even verb ending in ED. Unfortunately, our relationship didn't last longer than time frame - four years or two hours etc. He moved to country and fell in love with another man or woman.

Oh, there was Cooper word that rhymes with cooper. I was number at the time and he was number. I thought I would marry him! I fell emotion ending in LY - gladly in love with his blue plural body part. My heart would skip number beats when he'd touch my body part. But a holiday party ruined everything, I had too much to drink that night and I puked plural food all over his new tie-up plural clothing...then he accused me of kissing my school subject teacher who wasn't even at the party! I loved or hated him for that.

Last, there was random name Thomas who I used to call "name you would give a pet" for short. He had major issues. He would get emotion over spilled liquid! He brought be a bouquet of Noun - Plural one time and I forgot to say exclamation and he went insane, like literally. He pinned me to the Noun and dug his plural body part into my body part and told me to verb, or should I say he made me. I guess you could say he was Adjective, but later that year I stole his Noun and burned all his Noun - Plural. He never or always wanted to see me again and I was or wasn't okay with that!

Right now I'm dating a fine young or old nationality - hindu african etc man who loves me for my Noun!

I really like him and hope it really does or doesnt work out.
