Baby Bergeron

1. Proper Noun _____

Baby Bergeron

I recently stumbled upon Richard's Ted Talk about his amazing invention, Lion Lights, and I was unbelievably struck by this young man. Hailing from Kenya, Richard developed a solar powered system of lights that keeps lions away from livestock by flashing during the night. Around the age of 10 or 11, when most kids are worrying about video games or clothes or TV, _____Proper Noun_____ was taking apart electronics (like his Mom's radio) to see how they worked. He was learning, and he devised a system to save not only his family's herds, but the lion population, as well.

That would be more than enough to be worthy of our praise and admiration. But what struck me as I watched his TED talk was what a great presentation he gave for a person of any age. Beyond all of his amazing accomplishments, and strictly from a presentation standpoint, here are some more reasons we love Richard Turere:
